under which the Printing Services Division could defer low-priority jobs without recourse to extensive overtime or increases in personnel strength. It appears logical that these additional responsibilities could, in the future, be assigned to the Agency Publications Board on a continuing basis, provided the membership of this Board were expanded to include a representative of the DD/S&T and a representative of the Office of the Comptroller.

5. It is recommended that you approve the establishment of an ad hoc Agency Committee for the Review of Printing Requirements to examine printing burdens levied upon the Agency's printing facilities and to recommend action to reduce the printing workload in order to eliminate the need for increases in personnel ceiling allocations. Approval of the Committee membership, designated in paragraph 3 above, is also recommended.
